

News Home

UK

Yahoo Originals

World

Finance

Sport

Motoring

Follow us

ns out, 1 in 5 of has secretly essed our nds' Facebook ounts

SNAPPA Technology 19 January 2017

A survey carried out by computer scientists has shown 24% of us have accessed the Facebook accounts of people we know without their knowledge.

The practice stretches from fairly insignificant “fraud” – where accounts are hacked to post silly statuses or change birthdays – to more worrying cases of snooping motivated by jealousy or ill will.

Scientists from the University of British Columbia asked 1,308 adult Facebook users whether they’d logged into their friends’ accounts, either by guessing passwords, taking advantage of already logged-in browsers, or sneakily using apps on the victim’s phone.

Barack Obama: What is his political legacy?

Press Association video

What to read next

View photos

A stupid status is one thing, but snooping on their messages is probably crossing the line (Dominic Lipinski/PA)

The study looked at the motivation behind this type of hack – if people were doing it for fun they were usually opportunistic. In darker cases involving jealousy, half the time it was premeditated.

Computing professor Ivan Beschastnikh, a co-author on the paper, said: “Jealous snoops generally plan their action and focus on personal messages,

You could get a $300-$6,000 credit limit.

Capital One Canada Sponsored

By using Yahoo you agree that Yahoo and partners may use Cookies for personalisation and other purposes

Barack Obama: What is his political legacy?

Press Association video

Getting hacked by people we know is still a concern for cyber security experts (Thibault Camus/AP)

Although this kind of attack is common, they found it often has serious emotional consequences for the victim. So think about that next time you go to frape someone.

To prevent your loved ones snooping on you as much as we now know they do, the researchers recommend regularly changing your password and logging off the social network.

This is what incognito mode is for, people.

You can read the full paper here.

Pictures of the week: Bikes, bridges and birthdays

Launch Your Dream Site Today - Only $2.95

Bluehost® Sponsored

 Start the conversation

Sign in to post a message.

Police in Bristol taser their own race relations officer in the face

Yahoo News UK

By using Yahoo you agree that Yahoo and partners may use Cookies for personalisation and other purposes

In pictures: The nine tech trends set to go mainstream in 2017

mainstream in 2017

The Legend Of Zelda: Breath Of The Wild will be Nintendo's last first-party game for Wii U

International Business Times

Winfrey Speechless: Employee Quits Job In 30 Days

TheViralBuzzing Sponsored

The Obamas greet the Trumps at the White House

ITN

By using Yahoo you agree that Yahoo and partners may use Cookies for personalisation and other purposes

This is what will happen when President Trump gets the nuclear codes from Barack Obama

Yahoo News UK

Turned OFF! These are the most complained-about adverts in 2016

Why The Queen Doesn't Talk About Prince Andrew

Wizzed Sponsored

Exclusive: Sergio Aguero nudged further towards Manchester City exit following arrival of Gabriel Jesus

Yahoo Sport UK

Tony Blair to blame for Brexit, says Philip Hammond

Sky News

Help Privacy Suggestions About Our Ads Terms